BROADWAY

Located at the heart of Nottingham's Creative Quarter in the vibrant neighbourhood of Hockley, Broadway is a four-screen independent cinema, Café Bar, and community hub in the city centre, and the perfect venue for a unique and memorable event.

Broadway is nationally recognised as a cultural leader for independent cinema, arts and technology in the Midlands. Prior to opening as Broadway in 1990, our building began life as a Methodist church in 1839 before becoming a shrine to cinema in the 1960s as Nottingham Film Theatre – and we've been bringing the best films from around the world to the city ever since.

Just a five-minute walk from Nottingham's central Old Market Square and neighbouring the historic Lace Market district, Broadway is surrounded by culture and fellow independent businesses. From vintage shops and record stores to colourful cafés and live music venues, our home in Hockley is bursting with creativity. We're proud to play a key role in a range of events in Nottingham's cultural calendar throughout the year too – including Pride, Hockley Hustle, Light Night, and Broadway's own Mayhem Film Festival.

Each of our four cinema screens is available to hire for private screenings and events, alongside several versatile meeting and studio spaces. From small seminars to large-scale conferences and film screenings, we offer a fully accessible city centre location in relaxed, creative surroundings; with excellent technical facilities and high-quality catering options too, we can tailor your event to suit your specific requirements.

Our dedicated Events team is here to provide support throughout the planning process - from initial ideas to on-the-day details - to make sure your event is one to remember.

By choosing to hire a space or host an event here at Broadway, you'll not only have access to a fantastic venue, you'll also be supporting our mission to inspire creativity and a lifelong love of film in Nottingham.

If you'd like to enquire about a particular space or a potential hire, please do get in contact with us and we'll be happy to start discussing your event.
